

South Carolina Wildlife’s Twenty-Third Annual
Outdoor Photography Competition and Print Exhibition

South Carolina Wildlife’s Twenty-Third Annual Outdoor Photography Competition and Print Exhibition is open to anyone interested in photography. The magazine’s award-winning photography staff will serve as judges for the contest, and winning prints will be displayed at the 2007 Palmetto Sportsmen’s Classic, to be held March 23-25 at the State Fairgrounds in Columbia. There is no entry fee for the contest.

Rules have been established to ensure fairness in judging and an attractive exhibit and to ensure the return of prints to photographers. Failure to comply with all the rules will disqualify an entry. All entries must be mounted on mount board or foam core, which should be thick enough to hold up when hung at the Classic. Digital images will be accepted; however we ask manipulation (content) of these images be limited to the kinds of manipulation that can be done with traditional printing techniques, such as changing saturation and contrast, burning-in and dodging, eliminating dust spots, etc. Do not alter content of images. Images in which content has been altered will not be accepted.

Although care will be exercised in handling all entries, the S.C. Department of Natural Resources, judges and personnel cannot be held responsible for any loss or damage to prints.

This year the photo contest has a new category — Weather — and special recognition will be given in the weather photography category. Specify on entry form and back of photo if entry should be entered in Weather category.

Awards will include plaques for the first, second and third places in amateur and advanced divisions, with one overall best of show. Cash prizes will be awarded to overall best of show and first-place winners in each division. Every winner in each division, including honorable mentions, will receive a ribbon and a certificate. The judges reserve the right to exhibit the higher-scoring prints depending on available exhibit space and to award individual ribbons and certificates only to entries deserving recognition.
